New school honours former director

by Andrew Milne

While the school which will replace Haliburton's Victoria Street facility is beginning to take shape — at least on paper, the Haliburton County Board of Education has already decided on a name for the new facility. It will be called Stuart W. Baker Elementary School.

Board chair Wendy Ladurantaye announced the new school's name on August 31.

Baker was born and raised in Haliburton, and spent his entire career as a teacher and administrator in the area. He was Director of Education for the Haliburton County Board from 1984 to 1991.

Planning for the new facility has been going on throughout the summer. The planning committee unveiled two designs at the August 29 board meeting.

The Victoria Street facility will be closed for classroom use effective September 1997. The closure was prompted by concerns related to crowding and safety. The future of the 70 year old landmark beyond this date has yet to be decided. It currently houses students from the kindergarten to grade two levels.

The new facility will be erected adjacent to, but separate from, the existing J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School. The JDH facility currently houses students from grades three to eight.

The concept favoured by the committee working on the plans consists of two wings joined at an angle. The design, said Victoria Street principal Judy Tomlinson-Ross and business manager Jim Bradley, has the advantage that it should fit well into the landscape, requiring a minimum of rock removal.

Tomlinson-Ross was also enthusiastic about the design's potential for fostering — a "friendly, family atmosphere" — an issue which was very much a sticking point for citizen's groups opposed to the closure of Victoria Street.

Said Tomlinson-Ross, "We felt this would be a good plan

With the snip of the ribbon, Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon officially opened the Lions Medical Clinic Saturday morning. The ceremony was little more than a formality since the local service club took over operation of the facility last month. However, the opening provided the community with an opportunity to express its support and appreciation to the club for taking on the project. Close to 100 turned out to mark the occasion. Among the special presentations made during the opening was a $10,000 donation from the Minden Kinsmen, Kinettes and K-40 Club. The money was part of the amount gathered during the club's recent penny drive. Sharing the honours with the Reeve are Lions Brian Moore, left, and Tom Gardner.

Teens escape serious injuries

Two close calls in Stanhope

by Carol Moffatt

Two teens managed to escape serious injury when they were hurt in separate outdoor accidents in Stanhope last week.

On Sunday, August 20, a 16-year-old who was rock-hopping in the river below Buttermilk Falls fell into the rapids and was swept downstream before pulling himself out of the water.

Graeme Smith, of New Hamburg, Ontario, was on a camping trip with friends. The group was walking along the Buttermilk Falls trail when Smith decided to go into the water.

"From what I understand, the rocks were slippery and he went down on all fours and that's what scraped up his arms and shins. The water pulled him in but it was shallow enough that he could pull himself to shore," said Stanhope firefighter Martyn Mavor, who was on the scene.

Buttermilk Falls is a dammed, fast-running river leading from Hall's Lake to Boshkung Lake.

Ambulance and police were also called to the scene. Smith was removed from the rocky shoreline strapped on a backboard, and was taken to the Minden Hospital where he was treated for cuts and scrapes.

"That water's about as turbulent as it gets right now. He's lucky he didn't fall out into fast moving water," commented Mavor, adding that the accident is an example of "the perils of playing in water you don't know."

Emergency personnel were called out again the next day when a 14-year-old boy fell approximately 20 metres from a ledge near the Stanhope Lookout on North Shore Road.

Graeme Fawcett, of Stanhope, and two other summer students have been working extensively this summer on the creation of the township's new walking trail. They were taking their morning break when Fawcett fell from a rocky outcropping onto which the trio ventured. The boys were not on the marked walking trail when the accident occurred.

Fawcett, is believed to have struck one or more portions of the cliff before hitting the ground and a witness said he was unconscious when he landed.

"It's unlikely he would have survived if he'd fallen straight down to the ground," said Stanhope Deputy Chief John Hogg, one of the first on the scene.

It took two ambulance attendants and half a dozen firefighters to get the stretcher carrying Fawcett almost half a kilometre down the rocky, winding trail.

Fawcett was taken to Haliburton Hospital where he was examined. He too suffered only cuts and bruises.

"He's lucky to land where he did. There were jagged rocks on both sides of him but (he) landed on relatively flat forest floor. We were all pleasantly surprised when he didn't have more serious injuries," said Hogg.

Rescuers prepare to secure Graeme Fawcett to a stretcher before removing him from the bottom of the cliff. The youth sustained only minor injuries despite a fall of 20 metres. (Photo by Carol Moffatt)

125 attend information meetingLutterworth Township official plan meeting termed 'a success'

by Andrew Milne

Lutterworth township moved a step closer to establishing an official plan August 26.

The event was a public consultation meeting, aimed at getting public input into the plan, and correcting any errors in the current mapping.

Lutterworth reeve Jim McMahon was positive about the meeting, reporting a good turnout — at least 125, who signed the register, "and others who wouldn't get in the lineup."

Official plans — comprehensive documents sketching intended future development and, in particular, land use for municipal governments — are becoming a hot topic with the enactment of Ontario Bill 163 earlier this year.

Effectively, says McMahon, the bill requires that local governments have an official plan in place before being allowed to proceed with development projects.

Says McMahon, "The writing is basically on the wall that if you don't have your house in order you're going to be left behind. The responsibility is going to be downloaded onto the municipalities — you're going to have to have plans for the future, forecast where you're going to be in the next 20 years."

The point of having an official plan, beyond conforming to the provincial government's requirements, is essentially responsible, cohesive, and planned development. Official plans, effectively, are meant to sketch accurately where a region is in terms of development, and where it intends to go, preventing a government from governing by piecemeal, case-by-case decision making and failing to take into account overall planning issues.

Official plans — and the provincial bill which so much emphasizes them — haven't necessarily always been popular measures. Small townships sometimes balk at the cost involved, and some critics have argued that official plans can put brakes on development by complicating such actions as severing lots for development, and re-zonings. The provincial bill also sets a number of standards for the plans — critics charge this greatly reduces local governments' autonomy.

Actions to establish a county official plan were opposed by some on the basis that it would pre-empt official plans done by townships, plans which had cost their ratepayers already.

McMahon says he encouraged the individual municipalities to establish their own plans after the county failed to get consensus on doing a plan, and that the plans can be done quite reasonably. Lutterworth budgeted around $20,000 for the first stage of this plan, and that should be the most expensive portion.

Says McMahon, "That's updating all our mapping, showing all our zonings. And our bylaws will all be updated and revised."

McMahon also said the process of mapping brought to light one way to ease the financial pressure local governments are feeling in the wake of recent cuts to their provincial funding.

Said McMahon, "What surprised me were the amounts of crown land with fair sized lakes on them — those are potential for development if we could get access to them. With the way the province is cutting back on the municipalities financially, we're going to have to have the MNR release some of this land to us so we can open it up for recreational development. That's the only way we're going to keep our tax base."

Lutterworth anticipates that it will have a draft official plan — ready for review by the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs (MMA) — as of fall of 1996.

Hydro donates $5,000

The Ontario Hydro Corporate Citizenship program donated $5,000 to the Women's Emergency House project August 23.

The facility will house women fleeing abusive relationships.

Left to right are Neil Somerville (Hydro marketing representative for Corporate citizenship program), Sheila Whiting (Women's Emergency House supervisor), Elaine Bateman (chair of the Women's Emergency House advisory committee), and Rick Kellestine (operations manager for Minden Hydro).

The donation was made by Muskoka/Parry Sound/Minden Hydro. Hydro also installed efficient compact fluorescent lights, appliances, low flow shower heads and electric water heating, and advised on including energy efficiencies during construction, with an eye towards keeping the facility self-sufficient in the future.

The House will be holding its official opening September 9, at 2 pm.

*Director's warning: more to comeBoard of education facing provincial cuts

by Andrew Milne

The board of education will be looking for ways to cut another $20,000 from its expenditures between now and December 1.

That's approximately the amount the provincial government will be cutting from grants to education in Haliburton County this year, based on an announcement by the government that it would cut grants by a flat rate of $8 per student for that time period.

"That may not sound like much in a budget of millions," business superintendent Jim Bradley told the board at its August 29 meeting, "but as you remember, that was a pretty tight budget we just put together."

The board's expenditures budget, established in May, is just over $17 million — an increase of under one percent from the previous year, but an increase of between four and five percent for local ratepayers, due to a $650,000 reduction in grant levels from the Ministry of Education and Training made under the previous provincial government. The board's spring budget writing process had culminated in several failed motions regarding the inclusion or removal of a number of relatively small budget items, totalling $185,000.

A second cut the provincial government has promised will remove another $20,000 between January and March.

Director of education Brad Saunders suggested to the board however that the announced cuts are really only the beginning, and that the board had better be taking steps now towards coping with impending grant reductions. Said Saunders, "In [provincial finance minister Ernie] Eves' initial statement he made some general comments about initial steps the government will be taking, but of greater significance, he alludes to upcoming steps that will be appearing in the next budget. So we think it's frightfully important that the management committee really start to plan ahead and talk about some of these impending cuts, and how we can do the least possible damage to the services that we provide to children."

Building maintenance

Among the items cut in May from this year's budget was $35,000, from the building maintenance budget. The board had cut the item hoping nothing unforeseen and major would arise in terms of maintenance.

However, it would appear that something has come up already. The Gooderham school's boiler, during routine inspection during the summer, has turned out to be in need of major repairs. Bradley reports that repairs should cost around $10,000, and replacement $17,000. But the $10,000 in repairs would leave another nagging problem potentially unresolved — electrical problems experienced last winter appear unrelated to the perforations the inspection uncovered.

The matter has gone to the board's management committee for a decision.

Janet Readman, president of the Lioness Club of Minden, was in the water to witness the first duck float under the finish line in the annual Lions Club rubber duck race. Number 99 took first place, with the prize going to Ryan and Dan Kearns. Second was Shirley Mitchell of Minden while third place was won, for the second year in a row, by Debbie Sisco of Toronto and Minden.

THE BETTER BUILT HOME

"Renaissance woman"

by Andrew Milne

She sculpts, paints, draws, and makes pottery. She's taken courses through Central Tech in Toronto, and at Sir Sandford Fleming, studying under artists and artisans of considerable renown. The Toronto School of Fine Arts has told her any course she wants to take is fine with them. She's helped teach children's pottery courses, in exchange for more advanced instruction. She's been accepted to specialty arts programs across the country.

And she's fourteen years old. She's Lisa Cowen of Minden. She first started taking courses in arts at the age of five, taking advantage of the range of courses available at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts.

Last year, due to her proficiency, she was allowed to take the school's adult courses as well. And has now studied caustic painting (an ancient, difficult technique using hot wax and pigments to draw), composition, illustration. She has sculpted in materials as diverse as fimo (a type of artificial clay which dries to a plastic consistency) and soapstone. She writes poetry, and has attended readings.

One piece of her sculpture, a tiny garden gnome sculpted in fimo, was actually disqualified when recently entered in a competition at a local fair — organizers assumed that the tiny, perfect, delicately sculpted piece had been purchased as is and merely painted.

The list goes on.

Cowen, soft-spoken, smiling, is modest about all of this. She loves art, this much is clear. Asked about the techniques she has learned, the work she has done, she speaks with remarkable clarity — apparently quite used to answering the questions from an amazed audience.

The caustic painting, learned under Tony Cooper, a local artist who is attempting to resurrect the ancient technique, is one of her more recently acquired skills. She readily comes up with three or four pieces done in the class, explains how she did them, what she was trying to do.

Essentially, she explains, caustic is painting with beeswax and pigment. The wax is kept on a heated pallet to keep it soft, and the canvas is heated as well to prevent the work from drying too rapidly. Pigments are worked into the wax as needed.

She holds up a vase done for an enrichment program she was permitted to do in school — part of a project on Greek mythology. The design on the surface, she explains, is modelled after Botticelli's The Birth of Venus, and yes, the techniques used are based on the traditional ones.

"But I didn't have traditional materials," she says. "Originally they would have red clay, and they would have a slightly different shape of handles, and they would put black on it. This didn't turn out to be black — it turned out to be blue."

It's her sculpture, she says, that everyone tells her to continue with, and sculpture in which she has most training. "Particularly the fimo."

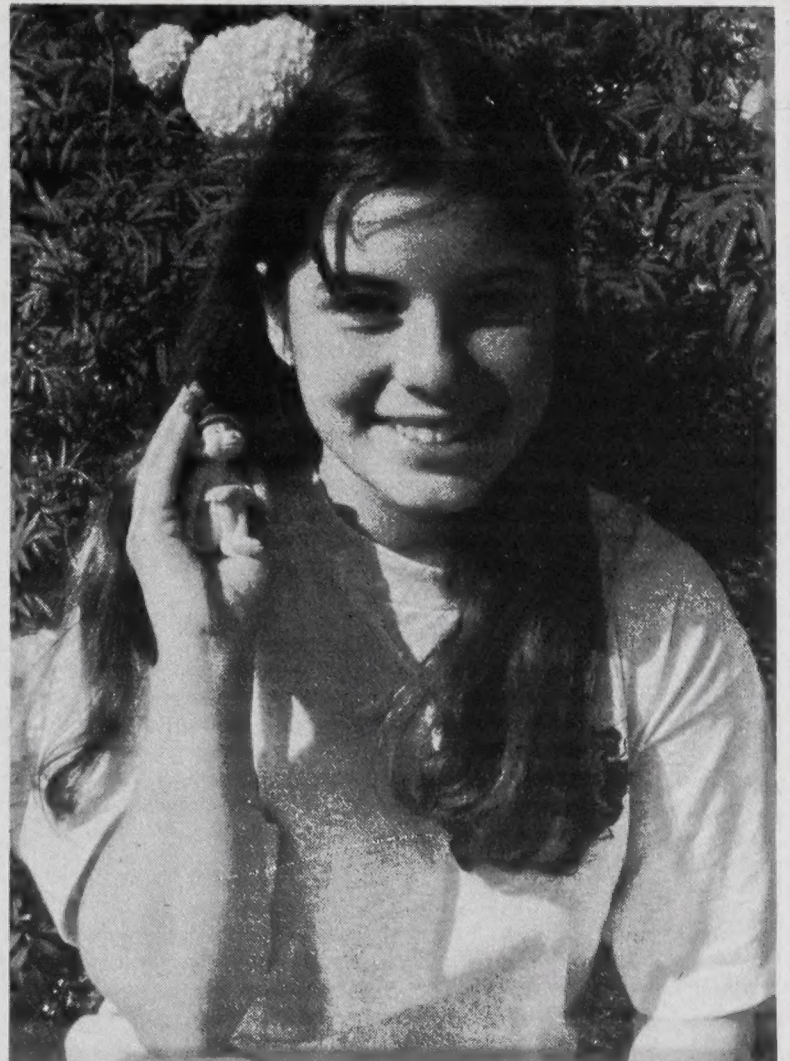

It's easy to see why — one tiny, doll-like figure she has worked from the material is strikingly life-like, lovingly detailed.

Her mother, Susan, thinks all of this is wonderful, though it's been a bit of a challenge at times.

The family is moving so Lisa can go to a high school with a specialty arts program. They haven't decided where yet, but Peterborough, she says, is the most likely target for at least the next year.

They could go anywhere. Lisa has been accepted to schools as far afield as British Columbia, and one principal, who runs a school in Toronto, told her she could expect to be accepted anywhere.

Susan has also become involved, due to her daughter's talent, in lobbying the local school board to create an integrated arts program at the Hal-burton high school.

"There are lots of great programs for younger children," she says. "But not much for teenagers... And there are so many good artists around here... With the school of fine arts being here, I think there's a real opportunity."

Popular images of prodigies aside, Lisa is hardly the brooding, antisocial, unidimensional sort. She has an easy laugh, an engaging smile, a natural, confident manner, and interests that range over what seems like every possible field of human endeavour.

"She's a renaissance woman," says her mother. "A real renaissance woman."

Lisa laughs. "If I do everything I want to do in university I'll be there for 20 years. So I'm going to have to make some decisions sooner or later... But I don't know. I'd like to go into writing and science and math and all that stuff too."

Amalgamation task force to report this week

The Board of Education had not heard anything as of the end of the week regarding amalgamation with neighbouring boards.

"But we are expecting something probably in the middle of next week," said board chair Wendy Ladurantaye September 2.

"You could say we're waiting with bated breath."

The Amalgamation Task Force appointed by former minister of Education David Cooke was to conclude deliberations September 1.

Cooke had instructed the task force to reduce the number of boards in Ontario by 40 to 50 percent, with the intention being to reduce the overall cost of education.

The Royal Commission on

Learning, which had concluded deliberations shortly before Cooke's February 3 announcement however, had recommended there were no significant savings to be had from amalgamating boards, and had noted that Ontario already has the lowest number of school boards per capita in the country.

In addition, the newly-elected Progressive-Conservative provincial government had stated during its campaign it would not support the amalgamation of school boards if there were no savings to be gained.

The Haliburton board has informed the task force that they do not feel there was significant savings to be gained by such action here, and has requested that they not be amalgamated.

Leon Wright receives Senior Achievement Award

Leon Wright of Kinmount is the recipient of the 1995 Ontario Senior Achievement Award for Somerville Township.

Municipal officials nominated the 78 year-old for his dedication to the betterment of the community.

The municipality submitted to the Ministry of Citizenship a description of Wright's qualifications, which was read aloud by councillor Clayton Cameron before the certificate was presented:

"It is a pleasure to nominate Leon Wright for the 1995 Ontario Senior Achievement Award.

"Leon, now 78 years old, has always been an active participant in municipal politics. He served as a councillor and deputy-reeve for the Township of Somerville years past and has continued to assist the community during his retirement as well.

"For a number of years he was general manager of the Kinmount Agricultural Fair and he practised a take-charge approach. If something had to be done, rather than delegate the duties, he would carry the project through himself to a successful completion. Many improvements to the fair grounds occurred under his leadership.

"He has a strong interest in the old CNR Station in Kinmount and in 1994 he was instrumental in arranging for a local blacksmith to set up a shop in a portion of the station. This feature attracts visitors to the area to witness the operation of blacksmithing in action, which is now the basis for a heritage theme park.

"An old sawmill exists near the station on the Burnt River and Leon was actively involved in a study in 1988 to reconstruct the mill into an operational mode. A new committee has recently revived this project, hopefully to completion, but Leon can accept much of the credit, albeit humbly, for the success of this plan.

"Because Leon had a keen interest in the affairs of the municipality, he volunteered to sit as Somerville representative on the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority for 10 years. There were many issues presented for discussion in that time period and Leon could always be counted on for his constructive comments.

"Leon was also appointed as a fence-viewer for the Township of Somerville and as the senior member, contributed valuable information in attempts to settle disputes between neighbours regarding fences.

"For personal pleasure and out of a need to be busy, Leon plants and maintains a large vegetable garden. Many have enjoyed the fruits of his labour, which he willingly shares with his friends.

"In summary, Leon has contributed in many and varied ways to the community of Kinmount without thought of personal gain.

"We wish him continued good health and thank him for past donations which are appreciated and recognized by the community."

Wright expressed surprise that he had been chosen for the honour.

Reeve John Huke and councillor Cameron, both of whom served on council with Wright, thanked him for the contribution he had made to their experience as councillors.

SENIOR ACHIEVER: Leon Wright of Kinmount (left) is presented with a Seniors Achievement Award from the Ministry of Culture by Somerville reeve John Huke.

A corner turned

The official opening of the Lions Community Medical Centre on Saturday provides an ideal opportunity to salute the efforts of the Minden and District Lions Club. We congratulate the members for not flinching in the face of a daunting challenge. They had faith in their own ability to meet the need and faith in the community to help them along the way.

If there was any doubt the club could accomplish its goal, that concern is rapidly melting away. With professionalism and foresight the club has purchased and now manages the community clinic. Sharing its vision of a secure medical future for the community, the club has worked closely with the various boards and committees to ensure its efforts closely match the long-term plans for the area.

As well, the club and the clinic have become a focus for the citizens, a promise of better things to come. Drawing support from all the other service clubs in the area and from citizens, organizations and businesses, the Lions Medical Centre has become a symbol of what this community can accomplish by working together.

As club spokesman Daryl Moore pointed out on Saturday, there are still "rough roads" ahead. Appointment schedules will be tight, sometimes there could be waits, and more doctors are needed if the clinic is to become successful and support the operation of the Minden Hospital. As well, citizens who have looked elsewhere for their medical needs must be induced to return.

However, we believe the opening on Saturday marks the turning point for health care in the Minden area. After a turbulent ride over the past few months and years, we believe the community can look forward to a degree of stability and growth in the area of doctors services. With that in hand, we can only hope that a similar state of stability will be brought to the hospital services.

Without the foresight and decisive action of the Minden and District Lions Club, the community would not have turned that corner as easily as it has. Thank you.

A young life saved

Editor:

Today, August 28, 1995, a young life was nearly lost.

Today, angels guided the fall of a young man.

Today, I want to say a special thank you to the Stanhope Fire Department for their immediate response, their undeniable skills and knowledge and for their warmth and thoughtfulness, both to the accident victim and also to the two other boys who were in shock and scared half to death. They had just watched helplessly, as their co-worker and friend fell over 60 feet down a rocky cliff at Stanhope Lookout Point.

Although their youthful judgement was poor in selecting such a spot to "take a break", their fast reactions were well made and they didn't hesitate to scurry down the open face of the cliff to help their buddy. I applaud their courage and strength and determination. Glenn McGuire and Dan Kirkpatrick did well in the face of disaster.

I thank also the Stanhope Council who saw the boys through the trauma and whose compassion and consideration enabled the boys to accept what had happened and to deal with it and their aftershock.

As the mother of one of the boys, I, today, thank God that Graeme Fawcett had, miraculously, no serious injuries and is alive and I selfishly thank God it wasn't my son who was hurt.

I just wish more young folk would realize that "It CAN happen to them" - that 99 times it won't probably, but it just takes that one time for disaster to hit. You are not invincible, contrary to youthful popular belief!

A concerned but thankful Mom,

Thelda McGuire,
Stanhope.

Respect

Editor:

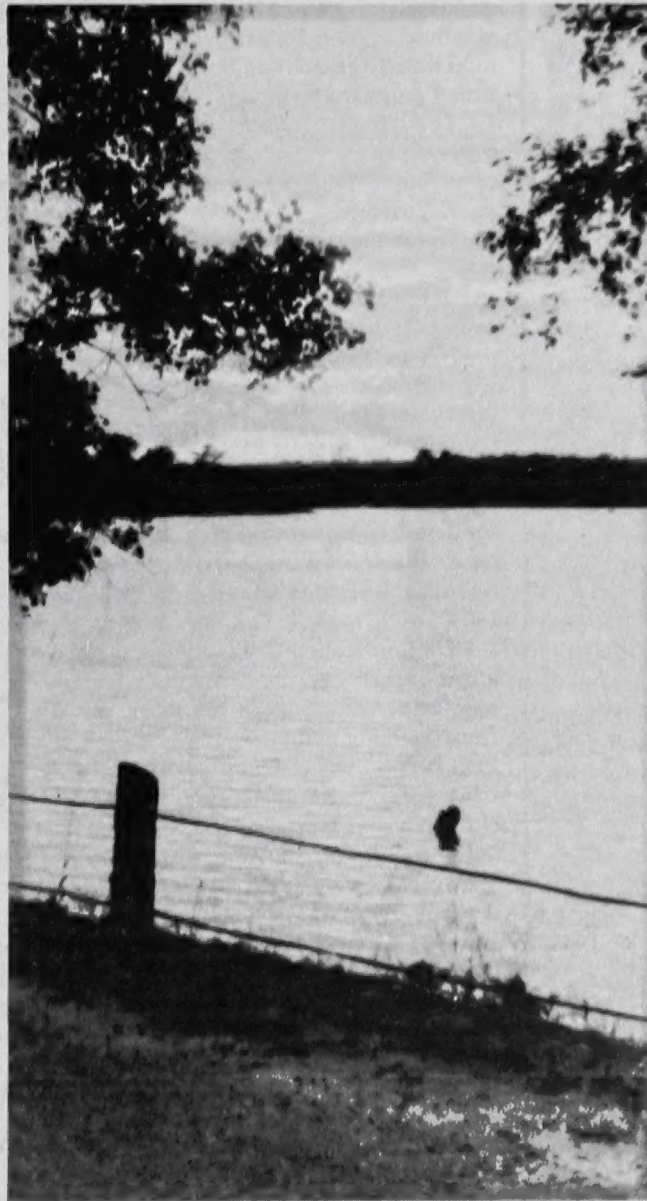

Minden is a beautiful village surrounded by very attractive landscape and boasts many residents who do their utmost to keep the area attractive. These people work hard at planting flower beds, trimming hedges and keeping their lawns neat. We see new business owners cleaning up trash filled lots and keeping the grounds attractive. We have visitors to our village remark on the beauty of the community. All this provides a very nice scenario and this is what should prevail. Sounds great!

Now we have the other end of the scale - a goodly number of brain-dead youths, local as well as visitors, who feel it is necessary to destroy flower beds, upset garbage containers all over the well-manicured lawns, break branches from carefully-trimmed hedges, spew partially chewed food on front doors and entrances of business premises. Add to this the purveying of the four letter word interjected as every other word that comes out of their mouths and you listen to this all summer long. Then we compound this with the attempts to turn Main Street into a drag race track until one or two a.m. Let me stress this is not only a few local boneheads, some of our visitors bring in some real dandies with them. All this sounds disgusting, but, it is reality. I think I would gladly trade the sound of an airplane taking off and landing anytime just in case Council is interested.

It is quite obvious that we have some parents who have abdicated their responsibility so I might suggest the formation on an Interested Citizens Committee to help resolve the situation. If you are interested, please get in touch. Before the bleeding hearts start whining about nothing for the youth to do, teach them to walk over to a garbage container and deposit their trash and language, that should fill in a few hours. Learn to respect the property of others and when a facility has been provided, such as a basketball net or a paved area for occasional use for ball hockey, respect it so that it is not taken away from the decent youth of the community.

Smoked out

Editor:

I am upset that smoking is allowed in public buildings and businesses in Minden.

I took a group of seven people to the wrestling function on August 25. My daughter is asthmatic and cannot breathe if exposed to cigarette smoke. We asked the arena manager to enforce signs that stated it was a smoke free facility and no smoking was allowed. He refused on two occasions. Erin had to use her inhaler twice. We left early, very upset.

I've written to the recreation centre and the council. It's time to stop smoking in public buildings. We pay taxes and as a non-smoker, I was denied access to the arena because smoking was allowed. How do you explain to a child that people can smoke and cause her to have an asthma attack and that this policy is supported by the council? Who are they supposed to be protecting?

I enjoyed seeing the kids playing basketball at the new area. It's too bad some younger kids may ruin everyone's fun by climbing on the roof of the water tap area, throwing stones at us as we use it and drinking with their mouths from the hose.

Perhaps the garbage can should be chained to the wall, a fountain should be installed or the roof should be tarred or greased.

Kids, wake up! You are destroying your own fun!

Wonderful stories in marble and granite

I'm reading this story in the local newspaper about a guy named Greg Kett. Greg is the manager of a brand new cemetery that's opening up not far from where I live and he's in the newspaper talking about his plans for the marble orchard. And he's quoted as saying; "We are going to try and make the cemetery as much an active, people place as we can." Unquote.

Well, I laugh! I mean ... a cemetery??? A people place??? I laugh ... and then I think to myself; why not?

Cemeteries are a strange idea, when you think about it. We set aside this swath of prime land, often right in the middle of where we live ... and then, we plant people in it. We don't allow corner stores or baseball diamonds, or traffic intersections or condos. We cut the grass and manicure the hedges and allow the trees to grow as high as they want to.

When you think about it, we treat cemeteries a lot more reverently than the rest of the land where we live.

Part of it is out of our respect for the departed. We don't want people throwing pop bottles or cigarette wrappers around.

But there's something else at work too. There's an unspoken agreement that we will shun the graveyard, detour around it in our travels. Keep our voices down. Behave ourselves.

And that's too bad, in a way. Graveyards are wonderful places. Peaceful, untroubled, healing oases in the beehive of busy-ness we call civilization.

I think of Mount Pleasant in downtown Toronto. Mount Pleasant is a huge cemetery covering dozens of city blocks. Instead of pavement, you have rolling acres of grass and trees. And tombstones and mausoleums and leafy, wooded bowers.

It is one of the loveliest places I know in which to spend an hour or two in downtown Toronto.

But people look at you oddly if they spot you wandering around there.

What's he up to? What kind of a weirdo would spend his spare time walking in a cemetery?

I don't spend much time in Mount Pleasant, but I do hang out in a cemetery in the small town where I live.

You read some wonderful stories in marble and granite in my local cemetery. Here is a moss-covered stone that tells me it marks the place where Carrie McTavish lies. Carrie was born in Aberdeen, Scotland in 1896. She died in Fergus, Ontario in 1920.

Of what? Was she married? How did her loved ones hear of her death?

Stories everywhere you look.

I used to walk my dog through the cemetery and marvel at the tameness of the squirrels there. They looked at

Rufus,
(who weighs 70 pounds and doesn't look remotely squirrel-like) as if he was just a larger version of themselves. No fear, no skittering up the nearest tree.

Fortunately, Rufus is, well, elderly, and not particularly belligerent. But I wondered why they weren't afraid of him.

Then I discovered a small sign on the cemetery entrance. NO PETS ALLOWED.

So that was it. The squirrels had never seen a dog.

Black'n White

by Arthur Black

Well, I understand the sign. People don't want dogs peeing on the tombstones and making messes. But it makes me sad too. Banning pets just makes cemeteries more "unnatural". Less like everyday life.

I'd like it better if cemeteries were 'dog places' as well as 'people places'. Besides, my mom and dad are buried there, and I know it wouldn't bother them to see Rufus sniffing about.

As Greg Kett says in my newspaper, "If the only people who come to our cemetery are those who have family or friends buried here, that's a limited number of people making use of a very intensely developed piece of property."

Reminds me of the story about a man who came to put flowers on the grave of his departed wife. He noticed an Oriental man placing a bowl of rice on the grave of his dear, departed.

"When do you expect your fiend to come up and eat the rice?" he asked the Oriental man.

"Oh," replied the Oriental, "About the same time your friend comes up to smell the flowers."

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

Hard to believe, but the R & W Bakery in Minden has been serving the community for a year. September 1 marked the official anniversary of the opening and Richard Milewski and staff naturally celebrated with a beautifully decorated cake. Patrons visiting the store shared in the festivities with a piece of cake and a coffee on the house. Pastry chef Marion Markowski holds the birthday cake while staff, from the left, Richard, Wanda, and Yvonne Milewski, Eric Casper and Eva Milewski look on. Congratulations Richard.

Minden Lake exec. re-elected

Under a gentle sprinkle of rain, the members of the Minden Lake Ratepayers Association braved the weather and held their annual meeting outdoors Saturday August 26.

The main order of business was the election of officers for the coming year. This year's executive accepted the accolades of the membership and agreed to stand for another term. Returned as president was Gord Sheehan. He will be assisted by secretary and immediate past president Roy Mann; treasurer and membership chairman Francine Newton; and executive members Ross Codlin, Cliff Scott, Jack Dredge and Jim Bell.

The only other item to attract a great deal of discussion was the organization's membership in the Federation of Ontario Cottagers Associations (FOCA).

The organization recently raised its rates and several members of the Minden Lake group wondered if they could afford to continue their membership. The cost is $65 enrolment and $1 per member to maintain a lake association's membership in FOCA. It was pointed out that for the small group the fee can be a major burden.

Association president Gord Sheehan described some of the benefits membership in the organization offered including the powerful lobbying effort on cottage issues such as market value assessment. The executive was asked to examine the benefits of FOCA membership during the coming year and report to the next annual meeting. The Minden Lake association currently has a membership of 39 out of a possible 140.

It was also pointed out that the association had recently made a $500 donation to the Lions Medical Clinic in Minden. Treasurer Francine Newton, noting the size of the Minden Lake group, challenged other lake associations to match the generosity shown by this relatively small organization.

Shortly after the close of the meeting, as the members settled in for the traditional corn roast, the sky opened and a heavy downpour pounded the area. Those in attendance took shelter in the Mann cottage and enjoyed an evening of fellowship.

Cooper horseshoe pitching champion for 1995 season

Jerald Cooper of Minden cleaned up in horseshoes this season. He won the Thursday Night Horseshoe Pitching League championship. Wayne Parnell of Haliburton was second and third went to Jim Skinner of Halls Lake.

Cooper, sponsor of the Jerry's Barber Shop Horseshoe Pitching Tournament, finished first, along with partner Gary Larson of Minden. Second place in the tournament went to the team of Phil Sawyer of Minden and Marnie Byrnes of Halls Lake. Don Troop of Gooderham and Shorty of Minden were third.

Cooper was also first in the doubles contest. Ron Barr of Gooderham was second and Wayne Parnell was third.

ORGANIZERS: Nadine Woods, Connie Crego, Hillary Kelly, Maureen Jones, Lynne Kilby and Cheryl Lafferty (l to r) organized the Kinmount Youth Dart League. They plan to start up again later this month, with the action moving to Tuesday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 at the Kinmount Legion. The inaugural nine-week season was so encouraging, the organizers hope to offer area youth the opportunity to enjoy the sport year round.

AWARD WINNERS: The Kinmount Youth Dart League celebrated the end of a successful season with a banquet and awards presentations at the Kinmount Legion on August 28. Pictured above are winners of various awards for the first season of the league. Participants were required to take part in at least four evenings of competition over the course of the nine-week season to be eligible for an award. Participants who qualified included: Daryl Munro, Jackie Fountain, Terry King, Shyanne Watson, Dawn Good, Kristin Woods, Mike Grozelle, Kristy Lafferty, Adam Fendley, Greg Reeds, Grant Reeds, Alexander Reeds, Jessica Tulette, Serena Crego, Jolene Kelly, Chris Snoddon, Billy Fountain, Tom Watson, Kristina Good, Lisa Barette, Mary Kilby, Robynne Kilby and Blair Crego.

Fears that old cars will have to be scrapped are unfounded

Government has no plans to implement "clunker law"

by Jerry Grozelle

Fears that the federal government may be working on a so called "clunker law" may be a bit premature.

Rumours that the Ministry of the Environment was working on a bill that would see all pre-1978 cars and trucks scrapped because they wouldn't meet today's emission standards are not true.

The report on Options for Canada's National Action Program on Climate Change includes the suggestion of a voluntary "Vehicle Retirement" initiative, similar to what is being offered in California.

Local old car buff John Mackey explained that, in California, the government and the car makers offer incentives to people who turn old "clunkers" in to be scrapped. It is an incentive for people to get polluting autos off the road. Mackey quoted figures of $500 from the government and another $500 from the auto manufacturer for a clunker that is still running.

Mackey said he spoke to the provincial Environment Minister's parliamentary assistant and was told that there is no legislation tabled or even being drafted regarding clunker laws.

Mackey said he was told the government is thinking about vehicle emission testing, but if it were made law that cars have to be regularly tested for emissions, they would probably exempt all the cars that qualify as historic vehicles.

"So, it doesn't seem anything is being worked on at the moment," he said.

The National Association of Antique Automobile Clubs of Canada Corporation (NAAACCC) has distributed a mail-in coupon through Old Autos, a bi-monthly newspaper for old car enthusiasts. The clip-and-mail coupon is addressed to the federal ministries of Natural Resources and Environment. It opposes "the imposition of any law or regulation which will in any way adversely affect my enjoyment and the public's enjoyment of antique motor vehicles manufactured in 1978 or earlier years, such as outlined by the National Action Program on Climate Change... I believe that such measures will cause unreasonable hardship on both low income families and the antique vehicle hobby."

Readers of the paper are asked to sign the coupon and mail it to the NAAACCC president in Alberta, if they have an interest in preserving the heritage and history of the automobile and protecting the old car hobby from becoming extinct.

"Apparently they're working themselves up into a frenzy over nothing but rumours," Mackey said. "Neither level of government will admit that they're working on any laws about this at all."

An article in the August 7 issue of Old Autos states that letters have been received by Environment Minister Sheila Copps and Natural Resources Minister Anne McLellan which emphasize that if any type of vehicle retirement initiative were instituted, it would be strictly voluntary. It was further stated that a vehicle retirement initiative was only one of 80 proposals by the National Action Program on Climate Change.

The Natural Resources Minister assured that if such an initiative was considered, the interested stakeholders would be fully consulted.

NOT IN JEOPARDY: This 1929 Model A Ford, which was restored by Russell Crawford of Minden, is in no danger of being relegated to the crusher. Rumours that the federal government was planning to implement a "clunker law" has been denied by the federal Environment and Natural Resources Ministries.

New basketball court is a popular attraction

...young people told they are responsible for the court

It didn't take young people long to discover the latest recreational facility in Minden. Even as municipal workers were putting the finishing touches on the backboard and fencing August 25, an eager crowd of hoopsters were waiting to get their first shot at the new facility.

The single hoop basketball court is located between the firehall and old ambulance hall. Acting OPP Sergeant and Minden's Community Policing officer, Rick Googh, was instrumental in getting the project constructed. Built with a donation from the Lions Club and with the help of the municipality, the court was a suggestion of a number of youths who echoed an often heard complaint, 'there is nothing to do'.

"When we suggested a basketball court, they thought it was a good idea and an answer to the lack of activity options," Googh said. The donation from the Lions Club included an amount to allow for the purchase of ten basketballs which have since been distributed to the young players.

"The court is for everyone's use, but it also answers their complaint," Googh said. "The facility has been provided and the balls distributed, now it is up to the young people to look after it. They will be expected to keep the area litter-free and ensure the court is not vandalised. If it is ruined, it won't be replaced," he noted. "There can be no more excuses about 'nothing to do'."

The reaction of young people, judging by the numbers on the court, has been enthusiastic. All have expressed appreciation for the new facility and have been keenly honing their shooting skills.

Since the installation, the court has been paved and the area around the adjacent public water tap has been paved as well.

PLAY BALL: Thanks to a donation from the Lions Club and the cooperation of the municipality, a fenced, single hoop basketball court is now available for young people in the community. On hand for the opening last week were, from the left, front row, Billy John Cooper (an infant who may be a few years away from scoring his first basket), Kerri-Lynne Baayen, Cheryl Smith, Michael Haden, Josh Howard and Chris Boxall; in the back row, Lions Club President Brian Moore, Deputy Reeve Lewis Stevens, work superintendent Clayton Cameron, Reeve Jeanne Anthon, Community Policing Committee chairman Dan Stromberg, Councillor Daryl Moore and Acting Sergeant Rick Googh.

Controversial off reserve hunting and fishing

MNR cancels agreements with First Nations

Natural Resources Minister Chris Hodgson announced August 30 Ontario's intention to terminate the Community Conservation Harvest Agreements with the seven Williams Treaty First Nations.

The agreements were signed by the previous NDP government in February 1995 and gave the Williams Treaty First Nations special privileges to hunt and fish off reserve. The termination of the agreements helps fulfil a commitment by the current government to restore balance to hunting and fishing agreements.

"This will ensure fair hunting and fishing opportunities for everyone," Hodgson said.

The announcement is consistent with the Supreme Court of Canada ruling in R. vs. Howard, which confirmed the seven First Nations' rights to harvest fish and game off-reserve were extinguished by the 1923 Williams Treaty.

A 30-day notice of intent to terminate these agreements has been issued to the Chiefs of the seven First Nations. The game and fish laws of Ontario and Canada will therefore apply to the harvesting activities of the Williams Treaty First Nations as of September 30, 1995.

"I have instructed ministry staff to work with the affected First Nations during this transition period," Hodgson said. "MNR is prepared to assist the First Nation members obtaining the individual licences they will now require."

The Williams Treaty First Nations' rights to harvest fish and game on-reserve are unaffected by this termination.

The seven First Nation communities affected are Alderville, Beausoleil, Curve Lake, Georgina Island, Hiawatha, Rama and Scugog Island.

Special meeting fails to clear the air about Norland Old West Weekend

by Jerry Grozelle

A special meeting of Laxton, Digby and Longford council last Tuesday evening really didn't settle anything. LDL deputy-reeve Mike Riordon pushed for the meeting to "clear the air about why the Norland Old West Weekend was cancelled."

More than 20 people turned out for the meeting. Riordon said he is satisfied that most of those who attended realize that it wasn't the council of Laxton, Digby and Longford that caused the event to be cancelled. Organizers insisted that it was council's decision (on the recommendation of the recreation committee) to charge the Norland Old West Weekend organizers $120 per day for the use of the facilities for the three-day event that prompted the cancellation. They saw the $360 fee as a lack of support by the municipality, claiming that other organizations have routinely been exempted from the fee.

The Norland Fire Department, which runs the annual horse pull at Ward Memorial Park, is the name of one organization which has come up. Riordon explained that the Horse Pull organizers don't use the community centre and that any exemption from fees would apply only to the grounds. He added that the revenues generated by that event directly benefit the municipality by funding improvements in equipment, facilities and training for the volunteer fire fighters.

The Women's Institute is another organization which has been exempted from fees for certain events. Riordon points out that the Women's Institute contributed $20,000 to the construction of the kitchen facilities in the community centre. He says that between the Women's Institute and the Fire Department, more than $77,000 has been put directly into the community by these two organizations.

Riordon said that the fee of $120 per day for the use of the community centre facilities is not a revenue generating proposition.

"It's to cover expenses," he said.

Riordon added that one person who attended the meeting felt the municipality wasn't charging enough to offset the expenses.

Predictions by a couple of council members that the Old West Weekend organizers wouldn't show up to answer questions of the public proved at least partially accurate. Dianne Austin, who is the municipality's representative on the Victoria County Board of Education, was unable to attend because of a board meeting on the same evening. Rena Parno indicated earlier that she could see no point in attending. Regarding the special meeting, Parno stated in a letter to the editor of The Times on August 28: "Why would the NOWW (Norland Old West Weekend) committee join in a meeting to hear more slurs such as 'Johnny come latelays' when it is obvious the decision has been made by the recreation committee to continue to charge a fee. I already know how they feel and this special meeting would not be put to good use."

Riordon said that he did agree with part of Parno's letter.

"She was right about one thing -- that I am not a diplomat. I just say it the way I see it and I'm honest with the people," he said.

Riordon disagreed with the accusations of slurs against the organizers, saying that he never intended to slur anyone and that he just tries to tell it the way he sees it. He said that people shouldn't take his comments as slurs. It is just his undiplomatic style and people sometimes misunderstand.

"When I say something, I'm not being rude or ignorant and if I am, it's by accident, I certainly don't mean to be," Riordon explained.

Riordon said that his remark about Johnny come latelays was in reference to the length of time some people have been living in the community.

"If these people had been around here 15 or 20 years ago, when all this started, they would understand. They don't know the history of the place and before they start making accusations, they should do their homework," he said.

He explained that the Norland Athletic Club was formed many years ago and that the contributions the Women's Institute and the Fire Department have made to the community over the years may not be fully understood by those who haven't lived in the area for many years.

He also disagreed with criticism of the Recreation Committee.

"Fay (Brown) and the committee put a lot of hours in," he said. "I didn't think it was fair to criticize them."

Lynn Peel, a former LDL councillor who has volunteered her time to help out with the Old West Weekend in the past, says that "absolutely nothing" was accomplished at the meeting.

"Maybe I felt a little bit better that I got to have my say in public, but I was not enlightened," she said.

Peel has been opposed to user fees in general and that fact was well known from her term on council. She reiterated that stance at the meeting.

"I disagree with user fees in any areas where they are charged by the municipality. I always voted that way when I was on council," she said.

Peel said that when she helped with the event there weren't many expenses.

"We cleaned up every speck of garbage," she said, adding that the garbage was bagged and taken away. "We even provided our own toilet paper."

The other expense would be hydro and she can't see any justification for $120 per day for hydro.

"It's not an equitable situation," she said. "I think what I came away with most from the meeting is that people don't understand what the system is -- who's organizing what and they don't realize the lack of co-operation between all the different groups."

Peel said the meeting wasn't a total loss.

"I believe we gained in that council expressed a commitment to have some kind of written policy," she said. "But I think that was the net gain... the fact that they agreed they need a policy. I didn't expect any more."

MNR cancels province-wide ban on open fires

All restrictions on open fires in Ontario have been lifted as of Friday, September 1, Natural Resources Minister Chris Hodgson announced.

Late last Thursday, Hodgson said that he was pleased that the ministry was able to lift the ban on open fires in time for the Labour Day long weekend.

"Scattered rainfall and cooler temperatures have eased the fire hazard situation somewhat, but many areas of the province are still suffering drought-like conditions," Hodgson said.

The ban on prescribed burns remains in effect.

"Whether camping, hiking, canoeing or fishing, a campfire is a very important part of the outdoors experience in Ontario," Hodgson said. "We want people to enjoy our parks and wilderness, but I urge everyone to continue to exercise caution with fire because the forests are still very dry."

Ontario MNR and auxiliary firefighters, bolstered by fire crews from western Canada and the United States, are currently managing about 40 fires, involving an area of more than 220,000 hectares. Much of the fire activity is scattered across northeastern and northwestern Ontario. Crews are reporting excellent progress, with few containment difficulties.

"I want to thank everyone for their co-operation and understanding during this difficult summer fire season in Ontario," Hodgson said. "The forest and tourism industries in the North have found the restrictions difficult at times, but they have always continued to support and assist us in our firefighting efforts."

Peel added that the meeting served to let council know that people are interested in what is going on in the municipality.

"Someone asked the reeve (John Macklem) how many days of the year that facility sits vacant and he answered 360," Peel said. "It's there and we're paying for it, so, should you have to pay extra to use it?"

"If the people in the community choose not to allow anyone to make use of their facility... fine... eventually they'll realize they're paying for something that is just sucking back money constantly and nobody is getting use out of it," Peel said.

She admitted that the skating rink part of the community centre has made money in the past.

"When I was on council there were a couple of years when it did make more than it cost to put the ice in," she said.

Regarding council members waiving their per diem to attend the meeting, Peel said: "They're still getting their yearly wage that they voted themselves at the beginning of the year. So they're not completely destitute. They got paid anyway so I sure don't feel sorry for them."

A good grilling

New school will strive for a warm, friendly feeling

— you could easily get from one room to another. By standing in the middle of the building you could see everything — all the halls and the children coming and going."

"I really believe the heart of the school is the library. So the 'heart' of the school," she continued, pointing to the plans, "is the library... We took down the walls for the reception area so that when you came in you'd feel very welcome."

Tomlinson-Ross also commented that the design, built around a large protruding rock occurring on the site, "brings the landscape right into the school. We just fell in love with it."

The board moved to forward the matter to the various board committees for advice before proceeding.

Naturalists elect new board at annual meeting

The following is a report of the annual meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Field Naturalists held August 19.

President Gordon Smith outlined the past year's activities of indoor meetings and outdoor events. The major project before the HHFN is the management of Snowdon Park and we are currently waiting for approval for a grant from a corporate funding agency. If successful, matching funds should be forthcoming from Snowdon Township and we hope to be able to use summer work crews in 1996.

The Founding President, Verne Graham, was presented with a wall clock in recognition of his several years of work and encouragement of others in setting up the HHFN.

Directors nominated and elected for 95/96 are: Peter Brogden, Gordon Smith, Linda Weir, Irena Durling, Vern Graham (Past President), Harold Peterson, Marion Jones, Mike and Nancy Kursbatt, Mike Darlington. Retiring directors Dave Kennedy, Shirley McCormack and Michael Collins were thanked for their services.

Following the formal meeting, Stuart Kenn of the Pickering Field Naturalists demonstrated the photographic equipment he has found most useful in nature photography. He emphasised that for the sharpest pictures with best colour rendering, the slower speed films are the best. The best photos come from the use of high quality lenses. The camera must be held firmly and there must be adequate time to frame the shot. He used a selection of his own pictures, to support the points he made.

Members were reminded that the next events are: a Mushroom Walk with Mike Collins at the Snowdon Park, 10:30 a.m., September 9 (bring lunch); and Ron Pittaway's talk on Shrikes to be held at the Haliburton Museum, 7:30 p.m., September 21.

Translators required

Haliburton County is growing and changing. Increasing diversity and complexity influence the way in which services are provided. A component of our endeavour to meet these needs for service providers and consumers, will be to maintain a Translation and Interpretation Registry as a part of our Volunteer Registry. This service will be free of charge to agencies or individuals who may require these services. If you speak another language take a moment and drop in to the centre, or call us and let us add your expertise to the registry.

We have an abundant pool of resources in our own back yard. Help us share those resources with our neighbours!

If you have a question or require help accessing services, contact the Haliburton County Information Centre. In Haliburton, the Centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., across from Emerson Lumber. The office is open Monday to Friday, 10:00 am to 12:00 pm, 1:00 to 4:00 pm, phone 457-2733. The Minden Centre, located in the Court House Building adjacent to the Anson, Hindon, and Minden Municipal Building, Milne St., is open every Monday, 10:00 am to 12:00 pm, 1:00 to 4:00 pm, phone 286-4100.

South Lake corn roast attracts 100

by Ken Brown

The SLACAR corn roast was a hot item on South Lake, Saturday August 19.

Nearly a hundred members of the Lake Association gathered for a corn roast at Terry and John Simpson's lovely lakeside property for an afternoon of hot corn, hot-dogs and hot sunny weather.

Social chair, Alan Foxton, put together a fine crew of volunteers to handle games, contests, food and fun.

The horseshoe competition was very popular and the afternoon eliminations schedule, worked out by Lance Taylor, proceeded smoothly. Al and Stew of Skidmore were declared South Lake champions. Will they challenge the winners of any other Lake Associations?

Dave Donaldson kept the younger people entertained with a variety of games while Bob Martin and Kevin DeGrace provided a steady supply of hot-dogs from a smokey grill. Senga Donaldson and Wilma Foxton ran a bubble-blowing stand for little kids whose glowing faces were artfully painted by Megan Rowatt and Heather Frize.

But, corn, corn and more corn was the order of the day - 20 dozen cobs were shucked in a hurry by kids of all ages. Tom Nicholson and Ray Lymer stoked the fires to keep a steady supply available to all comers.

Neighbours on South Lake wave to boaters each day and greet one another at Minden Post Office, the IGA and the golf course. But the annual corn roast brings all together for pleasantries, conversation and fun... besides, it's a great time to show off the grandchildren.

Speaking of children, 23 signed up for the annual "jelly bean in the bottle" contest...Courtney Elliott was the big winner.

Well done Alan...a great day for everyone.

Residents attend Windmill Park opening

Janice kept the folks in shape this week with fitness three mornings. Monday afternoon she held a quiz with some residents. Some folks went for a short bus ride and made that infamous stop for ice-cream. Mable Deacon treated. Pearl & Corinne held cards Monday evening.

Tuesday morning Rev. Peter Walford-Davis delivered the message at Chapel Service. We made crafts in the afternoon.

Wednesday morning several residents enjoyed a bus ride to Coboconk. They were invited to the grand opening of Windmill Park. This is a picnic ground and amusement park on highway 48. There is a petting zoo, futuristic water slide, and a concession stand. There are many other activities as well. Londa Earle was in to do nail care. The ladies always look forward to Londa's visit.

Thursday afternoon the Kinmount Catholic Ladies held a lovely tea party in the auditorium. Elva Deacon played the piano for a sing song. Thank you ladies. Janice continues to read several afternoons.

Friday morning Eric Smythe played the organ. Thank you Eric. At noon the Special Care Unit had a picnic in the new activities area. It is wonderful that this new area is available. It gives them some freedom. There is a large fenced in area where they can wander. The large pavilion makes it possible for the Residents to go out even if it is raining. These new activity areas are possible because of you folks who support our fund raisers.

It was a full house at Happy Hour. The Grandfathers Four played their usual great music. Lots of folks were dancing. Mary Moroff, a resident, celebrated her 90th birthday during Happy Hour. Her daughter provided a delicious cake and everyone present got a share. Everyone sang Happy Birthday to Mary. Isabel Keefer, office secretary, representing administration, read congratulatory messages from Members of Parliament, and many local organizations. Mary enjoyed all the festivities. Besides her daughter and son-in-law, there were three grandchildren and two great grandchildren in attendance. It was also Doris Robertson-Alton and Linda Fry's birthdays so we surprised them with "Happy Birthday" as well.

Windmill Park visit

Residents from Hyland Crest were on hand to help mark the opening of Windmill Park last week. The recreational area on Highway 48, west of Coboconk, includes a petting zoo, picnic ground and amusements. The Hyland Crest gang posed for their photo in the open air pavillion.

Saturday Gord Kennedy came in to entertain on the piano.

Faithful Reverend John Burgess conducted the Sunday evening Chapel Service. Organ music was provided by Lorna Roland.

Linda Fry has set up a fish aquarium in her activity room. It is good therapy. Psychologists have shown that a person becomes deeply relaxed watching the fish. It is no wonder then, that aquariums are increasingly popping up in clinics and hospitals. You don't have to buy one though, just go to your local pet shop!

Birthday greetings to Nora Groves and Mary Moroff.

Hope everyone enjoyed the last long summer weekend. Summer flies by, winter drags on.

Horseshoe Lake donation

Horseshoe Lake property owners have made a contribution to the future of health care in the Minden area with a $400 donation to the Minden Hospital Building Fund. The funds were raised during the lake's yard sale earlier this year. Roy Pink, centre, who, with the help of his wife Bertha and Doreen Powell, organized the event, presents the cheque to local Rotary Club past president, Brian Adamson, left, as Horseshoe Lake Property Owners Association president Fran Smith looks on. The Rotary Club oversees the building fund on behalf of the community.

With Sikkens,
the beauty is more than skin deep.

Your deck is the center of your outdoor entertaining and recreation activities.

So don't just give it a "finish". Give it a quality Sikkens finish with the Cetol® DEK or Rubbol® DEK systems.

The Cetol DEK translucent system combines the high solid oil alkyd combination and UV-absorbing pigments of Cetol DEK Base with the transparent iron oxide pigments of the Cetol DEK maintenance topcoat. The result is a superior system that both protects and reveals the true beauty of your wood.

For a solid color deck finish or to highlight railings and stairs, choose Rubbol DEK. It's the one-can finish that repels UV rays but allows moisture to escape, reducing blistering and cracking. Apply Rubbol DEK on cedar or pressure treated wood, smooth or unfinished - even aged and worn decks!

Encore performance

Members of the Haliburton Messiah Choir returned to Broadway last week with an encore performance of their popular spring concert. Once again the hall, this time at PineStone Inn, was filled to capacity as director Melissa Stephens conducted a delightful tour of the many familiar songs drawn from Broadway musicals. Funds raised by the Wednesday night concert were used to support the Women's Emergency House project.

Trent Severn Waterway report

The rapid decline of the Haliburton Lakes continued this past week reaching 64% by Monday, Aug. 28/95. This was down by 5.5% from a week before, well in excess of the usual 3.5% per week. Heavy flows were run from these lakes to counter the evaporation losses along the canal system. The dry spell is now similar to that which we experienced early in July.

Minimum flow was being run from the Kawarthas until today when it became apparent that Rice Lake and the Trent River could use a small boost. For a few days the flow will be increasing from Stony to Rice lake to re-distribute the water that is coming from Haliburton.

After the levels have been "rationalized" the flow is expected to return to minimum.

Lake Simcoe-Couchiching has been slipping down too, for lack of rain and it is now only 4 centimetres above the rule curve for the time of year compared to being as much as 9 cm high a few weeks ago. Flow from the lake which had been higher is reducing automatically as the lake declines and now is very near the long-term August average of 26.7 m3/s (cubic metres per second). The September mean flow is 25.1 m3/s while October mean is 22.4 m3/s.

Resolving conflict in the salmon fishery

Salmon have an exquisitely complex life cycle, beginning and ending in freshwater rivers with years of foraging ocean water between. The Department of Fisheries and Oceans purports to manage salmon but its purview is dictated by human rather than natural considerations. DFO's powers don't cover all factors that affect the fish; after all, clear-cut logging that clogs spawning beds is regulated by Forestry, while management of industrial pollution, farm runoff and urban development is under other ministries. Salmon management is splintered further by external affairs (international treaties), the federal department of Fisheries and Oceans (commercial fishing), and Indian Affairs (Native food fishery), and the provincial Tourism Department (sport fishery).

"Fish on the Line," a report prepared for the David Suzuki Foundation by fish biologist Dr. Carl Walters, boldly stated that DFO's management is setting up a biological disaster when driven by political and economic pressures. The failure of this year's sockeye run appears to support Walters' prescience. But what else can we do? Are there alternatives?

The answer is yes. Another report, "Fisheries that Work" was prepared for the foundation by Dr. Evelyn Pinkerton, a maritime anthropologist who has a long involvement with fishing communities along the Pacific coast, and Dr. Martin Weinstein, who specializes in socio-economic aspects of natural resource management. In case studies of fisheries practices around the world they found dozens of encouraging examples of sustainable practises and focused on 10 cases ranging from Peru to Australia, Japan, the U.S., Korea and Canada.

Management by fishing villages has worked for hundreds, if not thousands, of years. Lake Titicaca in Peru has a stable fishery employing 3,000 fishermen who harvest more than 8,000 metric tonnes annually. With no financial or government support, the Titicaca fishermen from communities spanning two countries make and enforce the rules. "Perhaps the most astounding fact about this fishery is that harvest levels appear to have remained stable since the 16th century when some Spanish records are available."

Two successful stories in salmon management are described in B.C. and two in Alaska. Two involve examples of co-operation between native and non-native fishermen. In Alaska, a successful initiative was begun in the mid-'70s when the catch had dropped sharply to 30 million salmon. As a result of state and community efforts, the catch rose to a spectacular record of 194 million salmon in 1994.

In B.C., the Skeena River Watershed Committee brings together sport, commercial, aboriginal, federal and provincial interests to co-ordinate the various fisheries and to halt the decline in biodiversity of the fish. Given responsibility and accountability, the committee shows that members can co-operate and be effective.

Japan's inshore fishery of non-migratory species has been dramatically successful. Dominated by small-scale operations, it contributes almost a third of Japan's 11 million ton national catch and almost 50 per cent of its value, yielding profits of more the $1.5 billion in 1988. The basic fishery is more than 100 years old with 22 000 local co-operative associations each with an average of 250 members. The major thrust of this system is to funnel a maximum of the benefits of the fishery back into local communities.

From the case studies surveyed in "Fisheries that Work," three elements emerge that are common to their successful management strategies and provide useful lessons for Canada's fisheries.

1. Planning units smaller than the whole coast are needed to be effective at dealing with conflicts between different interest groups. People brought together with shared knowledge about fish and concerns about their future can resolve conflicts, while solutions imposed from "higher" or central offices are resisted.

2. Agreements or contracts between government agencies and local or regional bodies allow a beneficial division of labour. Thus, government excels at setting general goals and standards on which it holds the line, while fishermen and local bodies figure out the most practical ways to implement the goals while giving themselves more fishing time. Their plans tend to be more flexible, creative and better adapted to the local situation.

3. Local or regional bodies bring special resources to the process, from knowledge of fish stocks to greater trust of local communities, to access to volunteer labour. This allows more comprehensive and effective management of harvest, enforcement, enhancement and habitat protection and restoration.

The crisis in salmon demands that we get beyond the finger-pointing and look to solid success stories from which to draw inspiration and guidance.

"Fisheries at Work" is a good start. (Copies available for $20 at the David Suzuki Foundation, Suite 219, 2211 W. 4th Ave., Vancouver, B.C. V6K4S2, phone 604-732-4228.

Superior customer service. A commitment to providing a wide range of superior products. A focus on excellence in every business initiative. These combine to make CIBC a recognized and growing leader in the financial services industry. This opportunity calls for an individual who is able to respond effectively to customer requests, proactively manage accounts and client relationships, and provide sound investment, credit and general financial consulting services.

In addition to financial services industry experience, you must hold a Mutual Funds Licence and be currently enrolled in the Canadian Securities Course. Your strong sales and service orientation and desire to work in partnership with your customers is complemented by previous investment and credit financial consulting experience. You are an excellent communicator who works well in a team oriented environment and, importantly, are always seeking out new and better ways of providing customers with the very best expertise. Computer literacy and proficiency with WordPerfect is required.

We offer an attractive remuneration package together with opportunities to broaden your career and professional scope. Please deliver your resumé in person to: CIBC, Main Street, Minden. No agency solicitation will be considered. CIBC thanks all applicants for their interest, however only those under consideration will be contacted.

CIBC is committed to diversity in our workforce and equal access to opportunities based on merit and performance.

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Last Monday saw the official opening of the basketball court downtown near the playground, with Reeve Jean Anthon, Brian Moore and Darryl Moore of the Lions Club and a police officer in attendance along with Lewis Stevens, Clayton Cameron and Don Stromberg of the Community Policing Association.

Helen Skelding of The Terrace had her daughter Mary Ruhl and two grandchildren visiting one day last week from Newcastle.

Glen and Louise Sears and her sister-in-law from Scarborough visited me several times while in the area on holiday.

Sincere sympathy to the family and friends of the late Phyllis Gallen whose funeral was late last week.

Minden RCL Branch 636 euchre winners for August 24 included Verna McDonald and Marcel Rousselle with most lone hands, Pat Rousselle and Frank Campagnolo with the highs and May Bradbury, Jack Chilton, Ellen Holden, Bill Menard, Anne McCreech, Barb Trask, Iris Taylor and Marie Dennie.

A little bird told me that Jack and Hazel Irvine will be celebrating their wedding anniversary one day soon. How many years will that be folks?

Another special speaker kept the large crowd entertained at the Museum's Bowron Homestead on August 29. Russ Wunker told a great deal of the history of Miner's Bay and the "Lost Silver Mine", giving many facts that were new to us. He answered many questions after his most interesting talk and was thanked on our behalf by Barb LeBlanc the Museum coordinator. John Hulbig was busy taping the event so we may enjoy it again.

Mr and Mrs. Russell Baker travelled to B.C. for several weeks to visit their son Glen and family.

Club 35 euchre game winners for August 28 included May Bradbury with the 50-50 draw, Jim Bradbury with most lone hands, Maxine Thomson and Milton Fletcher with the highs and Vicki Campagnolo, Bill Cowen and Milton Fletcher. Everyone is welcome to attend the games every Monday at 7:30 p.m. Next wheels to meals luncheon is September 12 at noon.

Ralph and Eleanor Young returned last week from a trip to Alberta to visit with his family.

We hear that John Francis is not too well at present and that Jessie Preston from The Terrace is not too good either, sincere good wishes to them both and anyone else we missed.

Lisa Heels and Audrey Vick visited Bill, Julie and Meighan Woolfrey at Bridgenorth and Christa Vick also visited the Woolfreys.

Birthday greetings to Ann Collison and Cora Upton who are celebrating birthdays on Sept 20 and Sept 22 respectively at Hyland Crest. You might enjoy sending a card or dropping in for a visit.

We also heard others having birthdays in September are Marley Viney, Brenda Carlin and Ted Madill with best wishes on their special day.

Weekly euchre winners at St. Paul's on Monday, August 28 were Ellen Holden, Irene Fuhr and Nancy Gayton. Most lone hands went to Iris Taylor and the draw to Judith Merritt.

Winners at Stanhope Bridge games on August 22 were Dorothy Strype followed by Grace Smyth and Peg McCracken. August 29 grand slams bid and made by Margaret Clouse (first time) and Fred Heald and winners of the day were Fred Heald, Beth Crutchley and Day Williams. The games are held every week at Stanhope library 1 o'clock.

Branch 636 seniors group had bid euchre games on Tuesday afternoon, August 29 with moonshots to Jack, Marcelle and Verna (2) and the day's winners were Verna and Marg McAfee.

A most interesting display at Agnes Jamieson Gallery of art and sculpture - if you have a few minutes to spare or just wish to enjoy drop in and see this show.

Wednesday, August 30, winners at the Noble euchre games were Pat and Marcelle Rousselle and most lone hands to Tod Edgson.

Weekly bid euchre game winners at Stanhope on Wednesday, August 30 were Jean Penick, Elinor Smith, Ruth ?, Harold Smith, Jim Skinner, David?, Wally Thomson and hidden score tied which went to Edith Russell and Elsie Henderson.

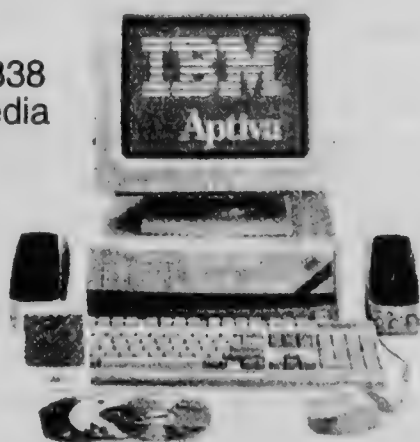

The County Town Museum accepted a beautiful bible in perfect condition, but we have very few details on this at present. There are pictures in the back of a young man in the early 1900's and a bookmark with the name Edmond, the date is 1873 and came to us from near Scott's Dam-Drag River area. Anyone who might have some information on this bible please call 286-3763 and ask for the Museum.

Minden Women's Institute Tweedsmuir History books have been available at the Museum during the summer but will now be back at Minden Library. We appreciated having them on display.

Legion Branch 636 seniors are again having art lessons with John Lennard commencing Monday September 11 at 10 a.m. so there's your chance to start a new hobby.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Muriel Reynolds would like to express our sincere thanks to friends and relatives who were there for us in so many ways - to comfort as well as reminisce, memories of a beautiful lady. A special thank you to a niece, Colleen Allin, whose support and caring will always be remembered. Thank you to Dr. Bottum and the nursing staff at Haliburton Hospital, to Rev. Spencely for his comforting message, the Minden United Church Women for the delicious luncheon and to the Gordon Monk Funeral Home staff for being so helpful at this time of sorrow.

Richard, Sheila, Lockie and family.

Special thanks to family for assisting in a get-together buffet lunch at my home to meet and welcome our Italian family.

Nell Miscio.

IN MEMORIAM

HOGG - In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Waneeta, who passed away September 9, 1992.

Past her suffering, past her pain,
Cease to weep, for tears are in vain,
She who suffered is at rest,
Gone to Heaven with the blest.
Sadly missed by Lawrence,
Yvonne, Eric, Ian and families.

HAMILTON, Norma - In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother who passed away September 8, 1993. A little tribute small and tender just to say we still remember.
